A WORD TO THE READERS OF THE ANNALS.

We are not a little proud to congratulate both ourselves and our readers that the ANNALS OF OPHTHALMOLOGY AND OTOTOLOGY can no longer be considered an experiment.

To ourselves, indeed, there never was any doubt about it, but in the present undue multiplication of medical journals it may have seemed to some as one of the many ventures destined to be ephemeral.

So great has been the sympathy of the profession, and so tangible its evidences, that we can confidently base the conviction of the permanency of the ANNALS upon the present subscription list, even if this list did not show an uninterrupted daily growth.

From all over our own country and from English-speaking peoples everywhere, there has been a steadily increasing offer of words of praise, of scientific contributions, and of subscriptions.

Our readers know by experience that they have been little worried by the verbose and useless inflictions of editorial vanity and appeal. Instead of this we have trusted in the strength of facts, believing that to "do the deed and say naught about it" is the proper way to gain the confidence of discerning medical men.

From the first we have relied upon no adventitious aids or outside business, to establish and maintain our position, but we have resolutely held fast to purely professional and scientific ideals and interests.

In the same spirit we now send forth the ANNALS to its thousands of readers, confident that future years will justify the resolve to make our periodical a worthy exponent of American medicine in its chosen special fields.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.

Authors who purpose favoring the ANNALS OF OPHTHALMOLOGY AND OTOTOLOGY with contributions are requested to observe the following:—

1. In accepting an article for publication under the head of "ORIGINAL COMMUNICATIONS" it is done with the understanding that it is to be contributed to the ANNALS exclusively, and that copies or abstracts of the same have not been and will not be published in any other journal.

2. Writing must be distinct and plain, and especially all proper names. (If possible a manuscript should be type-written.)

It might appear presumptuous on the part of the youthful editor-in-chief to attempt to revise the work of his seniors, therefore all papers will be printed as written.

3. Proofs will be furnished authors for correction and revision, but it is requested that alterations be limited to what is of essential importance, as changes in the copy are equivalent to resetting and cause additional expense and much annoyance.

Authors should return corrected proof-sheets promptly.

4. The ANNALS especially desires brief, mature, concise articles on practical subjects, as its readers are busy practitioners who desire results, therefore the author who condenses expression enhances the value of his contribution and is rewarded by having it extensively read.

5. Authors will receive gratuitously twenty-five reprints of their articles, in pamphlet form, with good covers, handsomely printed on the finest quality of book paper. If a greater number is desired they will be furnished at cost of press work, paper and binding.

The ANNALS is published four times a year: JANUARY, APRIL, JULY and OCTOBER, and all original articles should be ready to place in the hands of the printer sixty days before date of publication.
